AN EX-SAN FRANCISCO KILLER HIS DAUGHTER IN NEW ORLEANS.

[From the New Orleans Times, Oct. 20.]
Sunday morning, at 7 o'clock, on the arrival of the steamer Louisiana, of the State Line, plying between Liverpool, Portland and this port, a large crowd assembled at the landing, Post street, Third District, drawn thither by an instinctive curiosity that naturally attaches to the arrival of a person so notorious.

Particularly was this apparent yesterday morning as the vessel approached the pier, attributable to the fact that it was Sunday, and there were many people at leisure to fill the ranks of lookers-on.

Shortly had the busy incident to the morning of the ship subsided, many of the passengers hurried forward, anxious to get out again on terra firma. Following several of the eager passengers, and accompanied by a young man and two young girls, was a young woman plainly but neatly attired and passably handsome, who, apparently as joyous as any, tripped lightly down the gangway to the wharf, across which she, with her companions, pursued their way. They had made scarcely more than twenty steps from the end of the staging when a man rushed forward, and, facing the four, addressed a word to the young woman, which in a moment he followed up by an oath and a stab with a knife. She threw her arms up and fell backward. A demon appeared to have possessed the man, for drawing the large sheath-knife from the breast into which he had buried it to the hilt, he delivered another thrust at the young woman, who was falling, and the reach was short, being the point of the terrible weapon entered but about an inch.

The infuriated father was arrested, and to the police related his account of the affair.

THE FATHER'S STORY.
Joseph Higel relates that he is a native of France, and was reared in a village in the vicinity of Strasburg, where he remained until the year 1810, just before which his wife died. He is the father of six children, four of whom are now in Paris, one, a boy of nineteen years, in California, and Caroline, the one who came to such a tragic end yesterday.

He landed in New York, where he remained but a short time. Leaving there he journeyed to Cincinnati, and thence to St. Louis. After a year, probably, he made his way to San Francisco, where he remained until last October, when he sailed for California. He accumulated about $4,000, in various ways, most of the time keeping bar. His saloon in that city was on Dupont street, No. 1217, near Broadway.

A little over a year ago he sold out his interest in his business there, his intention being to go back to France and get his daughter Caroline, and come to this city, where he designed establishing, in conjunction with a friend who had come on from San Francisco, a brewery. This friend, a baker, was the betrothed of his daughter, he (Higel) having made the match before leaving France.

Accordingly, the matter having been settled between him and the baker, he left San Francisco on the 11th day of last October, and went thence to Sydney, Australia, whence he journeyed, after the lapse of some months, to La Bolla France, to his old home near Strasburg. He found, however, that his daughter had been married, he learned had gone to Paris, and was in the service of a wine merchant in the capacity of servant.

He eventually found her, and a few weeks ago they left Havre and came to Southampton, whence they went to Liverpool to meet a New York steamer. He knew but little of his daughter, having been with her but a short time, and he was greatly shocked to note that she became exceedingly familiar with the passengers on the boat during the trip from Havre to Southampton, particularly with a couple of young Frenchmen who were also on their way to America, New Orleans being their objective point also. The act of their great familiarity was observed by every one on the steamer, and

HE REMONSTRATED WITH HER.
On several occasions, none of which she appeared to heed. After taking passage on the steamer Louisiana (steering passage) at Liverpool, he watched her actions closely, and several times caught her on the deck with one or the other of the young men, when he would drive her below to her berth. He was sorely grieved to find that his daughter was not inclined to obey his counsel, but he waited patiently, hoping eventually to get her to this city, where she would be taken from the presence of those for whom she had evinced an infatuation, but, as the voyage neared its close, the girl told him flatly that on landing she intended to marry him.

Saturday night, as the vessel was on the way up the river, his daughter asked him to give her some money, which he refused peremptorily to do, inasmuch as he knew she desired the funds for no other purpose than that of setting her expressed desire of leaving him on reaching port. He felt that he would not give up one cent of the money, she attempted to snatch it from him. Brooding over the trouble caused on the voyage, he became toward the last really ill, and felt that he would rather, much rather, see his daughter dead a thousand times than to see her live an abandoned woman. Yesterday morning, when the ship landed, he went to shore, to a coffee-house near by, to get a glass of beer. He was absent but a few minutes, and when he returned he observed his daughter in the company of the young Frenchman; whereupon he approached and told her to go back. She refused positively to do so, accompanying her reply with curses and assurances that she never meant to live with him. In a manner frenzied by this unlooked-for development, he produced his long knife, and in a moment buried the blade in his child's breast. In relating the foregoing, Higel did not appear in the least affected, and even expressed himself perfectly satisfied with the termination, and evinced a readiness to die if it were so ordered, since, as a father, he believed he had acted in accordance with the dictates of honor.

THE STORY OF THE PASSENGERS.
Those of the steamer passengers who occupied bunks near the ill-fated woman and the unhappy father relate a story at variance with the foregoing in many respects. They one and all, as do the employes of the steamer, testify to the exemplary conduct of the young woman during the entire voyage, alleging that there was nothing whatever in her conduct that could have justified the suspicions of which the father seemed possessed. It was a matter of great surprise to them that he should have watched her so closely, inasmuch as she was seldom seen in the company of any one but an

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for alleviating human suffering.
Seminal Weakness.
Seminal emission is a consequence of self-abuse. This self-abuse, vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with varying certainty the following train of morbidity symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves or rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blurred intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, pimples and various eruptions
about the face, hectic flushes, burning tongue, fistulæ, breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequently insanity. If relief be not obtained good should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure.
Cured at Home.
Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicine promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use.
Persons writing to the Doctor will please state
the name of the paper they see this advertisement in.
By enclosing $10 in coin in a registered letter
through the Postoffice, enclosing Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded free of cost to any part of the Union.

DR. GIBBON'S DISPENSARY,
N. O. 423 Kearny Street, COR-NER Commercial, San Francisco.
Private entrance on Commercial street.
Established in 1844, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc.
Skin diseases of years standing, and Cerebral Legs, etc., successfully treated.
DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice.
The Doctor has spared neither time nor money
in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for alleviating human suffering.
Seminal Weakness.
Seminal emission is a consequence of self-abuse. This self-abuse, vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with varying certainty the following train of
morbidity symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance,
dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves or rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the
loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision,
blurred intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence
in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society,
loss of memory, pimples and various eruptions
about the face, hectic flushes, burning tongue, fistulæ, breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequently insanity. If relief
be not obtained good should apply immediately,
either in person or by letter, and have a cure
effected by his new and scientific mode of treating disease, which never fails of effecting a quick
and radical cure.
Cured at Home.
Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicine promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to
any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use.
Persons writing to the Doctor will please state
the name of the paper they see this advertisement in.
By enclosing $10 in coin in a registered letter
through the Postoffice, enclosing Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded
free of cost to any part of the Union.
All communications strictly confidential. DR.
